Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Saturday 22 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Wet and windy in west Sunday. Becoming drier next week.

This Evening and Tonight:
Showers dying out for many Saturday evening leaving a dry but chilly night. Showers over Northern Ireland moving east into west Scotland, Wales and parts of western England. Rain and strengthening winds arriving into the west of Northern Ireland later.

Sunday:
Showers and sunny spells for central and eastern parts. Rain and strong winds over Northern Ireland moving east, very gusty briefly in southwest England. Thundery showers following for the west.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Rain across northern Scotland on Monday, with sunny spells and heavy showers elsewhere. Fewer showers, these mainly in eastern areas, and more sunshine on Tuesday and Wednesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.